

Measuring Prices

- The Consumer Price Index (CPI) measures inflation as experienced by consumers in their day-to-day living expenses

- The Producer Price Index (PPI) measures inflation at earlier stages of the production process

- The Employment Cost Index (ECI) measures inflation in labor costs

- The BLS International Price Program measures price changes for imports and exports

- The Gross Domestic Product Deflator (GDP Deflator) measures inflation experienced by both consumers as well as the government and firms providing goods and services to consumers.

48

Measuring Prices

- The Consumer Price Index (CPI) measures inflation as experienced by consumers in their day-to-day living expenses
- The Producer Price Index (PPI) measures inflation at earlier stages of the production process
- The Employment Cost Index (ECI) measures inflation in labor costs
- The BLS International Price Program measures price changes for imports and exports
- The Gross Domestic Product Deflator (GDP Deflator) measures inflation experienced by both consumers as well as the government and firms providing goods and services to consumers.

Alternatives to the CPI: Cost Of Living Adjustment