

"Congress hereby declares that it is the continuing policy and responsibility of the Federal Government to use all practical means ...to promote maximum employment, production and purchasing power."

From a "Hands Off Government" to

The Full Employment Act of 1946

From that point on, the main role of the Government is to
"manage" the economy

“Congress hereby declares that it is the continuing policy and responsibility of the Federal Government to use all practical means ...to promote maximum employment, production and purchasing power.”

From that point on, the main role of the Government is to “manage” the economy

How does managing the economy compares with the “hands off” approach?
